Date - 4.5.20

Explanation -

The story is about the very hardworking Little Red Hen, who lived in a tiny cottage with her little chicks. One day, she was out with her friends, the Lamb, the cat and the Goose, when she found a few grains of wheat. She asked her friends for help in sowing the grains, but they all refused to help her. So she planted them herself. The grains soon sprouted and grew all through summer. Many days later, they were ripe enough to be picked. The Little Red Hen again asked her friends to help her, but they refused again. So she picked the grains herself and put them into a sack. The little Red Hen again asked her friends for help to take the wheat to the mill, and they refused again. So she took the wheat to the mill herself and got it ground. The next day, she baked a lovely loaf of bread. Now, the Little Red Hen asked everybody who would help her eat the bread. This time, her friends came forward to eat the bread. But the Little Red Hen refused to give any bread to them, and ate the bread with her little chicks.
